Fraud in healthcare is a fast-growing problem nationwide, and our state is not immune. What's more, forms of fraud have become more varied and pernicious, and there is a need now—more than ever—for healthcare financial professionals to become better equipped to help their organizations detect, prevent, and recover from the serious threats fraud poses.

This year's conference will feature fraud topics on Medicaid and Medicare, the use of data analytics to detect and prevent payment fraud, investigative best practices, and much more. Curriculum will also include traditional sessions, such as economic and A&A updates, as well as new sessions on hot topics such as disaster preparedness and wearable health technologies.

The healthcare industry is fast-moving and continually exposed to new challenges and opportunities. Don't miss this chance to get ahead and keep your organization on the offense.
